8 KILLED, 5 DYING IN PRISON BREAK

TROOPS HALT RIOT IN EAST

Injured In Saving Tot

AUBURN, N. Y. Dec. 11.—UP—Sweeping through the shot-yard of Auburn prison and scattering a deadly hail of machine gun bullets as they went, a heavy detachment of National Guardsmen, reinforced by strong squads of police, brought to an end tonight the resistance of a band of convict desperados, quelled a murderous mutiny that raged all day and drove the prison population to bay in their cells.

In the war-like rush that ended one of the most violent attempts to break prison ever recorded in this country, five leaders of the rebellion were killed bringing the dead to eight, including the head keeper, George A. Durand. Three guards and two convicts were reported dying.

Battle Short

The end of the mutiny came with all the dramatic fury of a war time raid on an enemy trench.

As the gates of the prison swung open a force of nearly 300 National Guardsmen and police officers hurled themselves across the prison yard while a machine gun detachment poured a barrage of steel ahead of them and into the cell windows off the south block where the besieged desperados were holding out.

The battle was short and sharp one by one they fell surrendered or ran for cover in another cell house.

Upon his removal from a cell house where he had been confined with guards badly dazed from shock and bruises, Warden Jennings was immediately removed to the hospital and put in seclusion.

Late tonight the warden was reported to be resting easily.

All Quiet

Shortly after 7 p. m. militiamen said at the prison office that they had all the convicts "sun-dined and locked in." Their forces had been increased by more militiamen from nearby territory and it was estimated at that time that 850 armed men were in control. A check of casualties was proceeding and it was believed that the list would be considerable.

Using guns believed to have been smuggled into the prison and apparently well equipped with

M. R. JONES ATTORNEY OF NOTE DIES

M. R. Jones, 57, of 265 Vernon Avenue, Piedmont, died at his home early yesterday morning of a heart attack.

Jones, a native of Contra Costa county, and former assemblyman of this district, was one of the best known attorneys in this part of the state.

He had been suffering from heart disease for several years, and when he had an attack yesterday morning, his wife administered the customary treatment. He seemed relieved after one treatment, but when Mrs. Jones looked again, he was dead.

Born in Martinez, the son of the late Judge Joseph P. Jones, in Hastings college and in the east. In 1900 he entered the practice of law in Martinez, and in 1911 was sent to the assembly from this county.

Rising rapidly in his profession, Jones several years ago joined the late Wigginton E. Creed in the law firm of Creed, Jones and Dall in San Francisco. The firm, which has handled several of the biggest cases in this part of the state, was known as Jones and Dall after the death of Creed.

Jones had just returned from a six weeks' trial in Redding the day before his death.

Always a leading political influence in this district, Jones kept in close contact with Contra Costa county affairs after moving to Piedmont.

Scores of friends and acquaintances throughout the bay region will be saddened by the news of his death.

Funeral services will be held at the family residence tomorrow afternoon, and interment will be at the cemetery.

Jones is survived by his widow, Mrs. Caroline Oliver Jones; three sons, Madison, Oliver and Robert Jones; a brother, Dr. Thomas R. Jones of San Francisco and a sister, Mrs. Pearl Taylor of Los Angeles.

THE WOMAN OF IT

By Marguerite Moers Marshall
Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1929

"Snow, Snow, Beautiful Snow!"

IT LOOKS as a woman reflects with anger, apprehension and anguish, as if one of those fine old-fashioned winters were in our midst, since ten above zero and a real snowstorm chill the cockles of the heart on the very threshold of December, more than three whole weeks before Christmas. We might have known that the comparatively snowless and joyless winter of 1928-29 was too good to last as a precedent. Something tells us that we'll all be shivering and snow-hating through the next few months of 1929-30. If there's one thing which annoys most women hereabout as much as runs in their stockings, it's "snow, snow, beautiful snow!"

Why do New York women hate snow? Well, why don't we? Why shouldn't we?

Snow, as a woman living in or around this town can see, is perfectly nice. It's needed. Like summer rains, to cool the air and to refresh suburban gardens and lawns. It certainly isn't needed to clutter up streets and sidewalks, to delay traffic, to sting the cheeks and run down the neck and slobber toes at every crossing. It even more certainly isn't needed to melt into rushing rivers of slush, or to half-melt and freeze up again into bubbly skating-rinks.

The only thing more disagreeable, from the viewpoint of the woman who walks, than snow in the process of coming is snow in the process of going. And in New York it never does know its own mind. It comes down with driving determination, as if it planned to stay all winter. Twenty-four hours later it's on the sippy sneak down the gutter.

Now is snow in New York ornamental. In patches in City Hall Park it looks like fly-sprayed tablecloths used for months without washing. In the piles cleared by snowplows, snow is a pretty, glistening white, which gives every woman a depressing reminder of what she's breathing into her lungs, day in and day out. Snow in the air is bad enough, but when you see it in the snow it's worse because you DO see it.

As for snow on city roofs, it's too high up for a good view, and it drops off in wet gobs on your new felt hat. The slimy, grimy sediment on the sidewalk, the hideous beyond description effect the snow has on the look of the city, the unattractiveness of the snow, which we observed in New York during the late unpleasantness, was the snow-trimming on Clive Virtues, the snow-trimming on Clive Virtues, he was, for once, the white-headed boy!

If now in the snow, the usher and the doorman, look at yet, it's even more of a mess for every woman except the Lady of Leisure. She can sit behind her double windows, on ride in her warmed and softly upholstered car, and rhapsodize about the "pure" white snow, the "lovely" white snow, the "lovely" snow—well, on the day the snow came, we ploughed up from the station through the storm and six inches under foot, for three-quarters of a mile of unbroken-out streets, the unbroken sidewalk wall. No bus stars moving against suburban snow until it stops.

In the morning the dusky Man With the Shovel, who is supposed to clear out walks, had not puff in an appearance, so we strolled out and shoveted the tops of the sidewalks, and the snow. George had a cold and had to make an early train besides, and if he'd done the push he would have got his breakfast, so he had to go to work, and he ordered us not to, the night before.

Oh, I cannot aid nor speak,
For they say I died last week.
ANNE COLLINS.

THE WAY THINGS HAPPEN

If a husband gives his wife money to pay cash, instead of having her buy on credit, he is entitled to a deduction of the debt, according to a recent decision of the District of Columbia Court of Appeals, which excused Representative George Huddleston of Alabama of liability for a $245 debt for furs bought on credit, the result of a slip-up of the Great American Husband clipping the Washington despatch and showing it to his wife. "You can't do that," he said, as the lawyer said to his client, "They can't put you in jail for that." "I'll even go to jail," he answered, "but I'll be here—so the wife will come back." "But I have done it!"

ALAS!

Moody and gloomy you—
What a couple we two.
With woe and trouble heaping—
Continually weeping!
Here's the cause of all these tears:
We've no place for this New Year's!

"With all her faults," the Stup's boss writes, "Mrs. Tcherny's wife, Sophie Andreyev, had many of the wifely virtues. She bore him thirteen children. But this is the average American father of three will feel, is another of those cases where virtue carried to excess becomes a vice."

The advent of the electric corn popper returns to favor that old time, everlastingness of the corn popper, popcorn, fresh buttered popcorn, molasses flavored popcorn balls and even crackerjack, the combination of corn, nuts and a syrup, may be enjoyed at will.

As in the days of open fires, or the comfortable coal and wood burning stoves, with a range, the family circle may make merry over the business of popping corn, and nothing is better than driving with a big soft, deep-seated sleigh, lapping a white-and-blue-and-gold country world. Around the city, however, snow fits the dictionary definition of dirt—matter out of place. What New York needs

After some weeks as the evening they were made, an excellent holiday bit. A few shelled peanuts, or pecans mixed with the salted corn before the syrup is poured over gives another crispy sweet that every one will like.

RECORD, RADIO STARS HERE IN TALKIE

Moran and Mack, the Two Black Crows, now add to their phonograph and radio fame by making their first screen appearance in Paramount's all talking comedy, "Why Bring That Up?" a rapid fire story of the vaudeville stage introducing many of the numbers that they have recorded. In addition to these they present many new Moranisms and Mackisms.

"Why Bring That Up?" is from an original story by Octavus Roy Cohen, the famous author of negro stories.

In the picture you see Moran meeting Mack—the forming of the team—their struggle for recognition and you climb with them to success. They show you just how they make up their funny patter and best of all you see them in real life as well as black face, doing their rib-cracking dialect.

Moran and Mack, the Two Black Crows, have the backing of an elaborate musical show, in the final scenes of their opus! A dazzling array of stage talent! "Why Bring That Up?" is real, you fairly feel every situation and they are all of such character, just like their records, that a child of eight years can fully understand.

"Why Bring That Up?" is the title feature at the Fox California theater today and tomorrow. In the cast are Evelyn Brent and Harry Green, talking comedy. Fox Nellie.

Aged Heiress
Faces Warrant

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 11—(UPI) After failure to appear in court here for a hearing on her guardship, Mrs. Mary Gesford Lott, 75-year old heiress and sister of a former Napo judge, may be served with a warrant if she fails to appear before Judge James G. Conlan here Friday.

Mrs. Lott had been missing since she was said to have disappeared following a Thanksgiving day dinner in Los Angeles. William P. Hubbard, attorney, declared today he knew the whereabouts of the aged woman and secured the postponement until Friday.

A sister of Mrs. Lott, Mrs. Louis Gesford, 82, was recently declared incompetent in legal proceedings here.

Sanity Suspect
Menaces Officer

MARTINEZ, Dec. 11—The arrest of Manuel Madero, alleged insane Oakley rancher, was momentarily balked today, when he is said to have menaced Deputy Sheriff J. M. Joseph with a shotgun.

Madero, according to Joseph, opened a partition of the door when the deputy approached, and said "I've got something for you." Joseph declared that Madero carried a shotgun. The officer then went to Oakley and with Ben D. Porto, a friend of Madero, returned to the house. D. Porto prevailed upon Madero to surrender, and he was brought to the county hospital to await hearing on a sanity complaint.

According to the complaint, Madero has threatened the life of an Oakley resident, and has been posing as a traffic officer and halting motorists.

Last Warning Appears Here At Richmond

"The Last Warning" is at the Richmond theater today and tomorrow with Laura La Plante in the starring role.

It is a riot from start to finish. All the ghostly things that can happen do happen in this greatest of mystery photoplays. For sheer suspense this is the first piece of art the director, Paul Leni, has ever turned out. It surpasses "The Cat and the Canary". If you missed his former directorial vehicle you should not miss this. But if you saw "The Cat and the Canary" you need no bidding to see "The Last Warning".

The story is absolutely different however. There are thrills and chills galore. You have your screaming audience—breathless silence as danger lurks in the offing then riotous laughter, a laughter of relief, which literally rocks the house.

Laura La Plante is delightful in the starring role. There is a murder—in fact, two murders—a haunted theater and ghosts warning a theatrical company not to stage their show.

Miss La Plante has never been more beautifully photographed. And as a versatile actress, the little blonde comedienne is in a class by herself. She isn't guilty of the crime—but we won't tell you who is.

RAIN HALTS MAIL PILOT

Forced by poor visibility to return to the Oakland airport, a Boeing airplane carrying mail for Sacramento circled over Richmond several times last night until the pilot got his bearings from lights at the Standard Oil refinery.

The plane, which was piloted by Henry Huking, a veteran Boeing pilot, took off from the Oakland airport at 8:20 o'clock last night and headed for Sacramento. After clearing the field, Huking was unable to see a foot ahead of him because of the blinding rain that covered his goggles.

He sent his plane lower to the ground and circled the city of Richmond, flying low and endeavoring to pick up some point so that he could orient himself.

Richmond residents believed that the pilot was in distress as they saw a red light on the plane flicker several times, as if the pilot were signaling. Huking, after landing at Oakland, reported that the light signal resulted from the navigation lights for an instant. When the plane was righted, the light disappeared from view of those on the ground.

Huking was flying a light, fast biplane, using a 525 horsepower motor.

Authorities at the airport reported that generally a trim-rotored Boeing plane is used on the Oakland-Sacramento run but due to the storm, the big plane has been taken off and the light plane substituted as no passengers were being carried at night.

POLICE GUARD AT SHANGHAI INCREASED

SHANGHAI, Dec. 11—(UPI) The 35,000 foreign residents of this international city—greatest seaport and commercial center of China—are troubled but not highly alarmed over events thru the republic.

The native portion of the city is under martial law, with a 1 o'clock curfew. Barber wire barricades have been built along the native section by French authorities to guard their concession containing some 800 foreigners and 290,000 Chinese.

Further north and along Shanghai's famous band of waterfront, police forces of Chinese and Indians have been strengthened to protect the so-called "international settlement". In this area live from 27,000 to 31,000 foreigners, including 1,800 Americans and 300,000 Chinese.

Traveling through the international settlement one hardly knows of the existence of a war or war—in China. There is merely an added tenseness aboard the warships—chiefly British and Japanese, plying through the muddy waters of the Whangpoo.

Despite contrary reports, no extra warships have been sent up the Yangtze river from here. The American cruiser Pittsburgh and six destroyers are expected here from Manila Saturday. Admiral Charles McVay, Jr., head of the American Asiatic fleet, is aboard the Pittsburgh.

Train service has been restored between here and Nanking after several attempts at sabotage by rebels to the north. It is denied officially that there is fighting along the railway from Nanking to Tientsin, although reports arrive of a terrific battle.

Thorne Denies He Has Forgiven New Son-In-Law

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 11 (UPI)—All reports to the contrary, Robert J. Thorne, of Chicago, former president of Montgomery Ward and Co., has not placed a fathery arm about the shoulders of "Cowboy" George Gillespie and forgiven him for marrying his daughter.

There were rumors that Thorne had come west to make peace with the young couple, but Gillespie made denial tonight when asked as to Thorne's whereabouts.

"Well, we don't talk about that in our house," he said. "I don't know where Mr. Thorne is and my wife doesn't mention it. I don't know of any reconciliation. I guess things are just about the same."

He said he had heard his wife, the former Katherine Thorne, mention something about her mother being in Pasadena and that he thought she had visited her.

Miss Thorne met Gillespie, dude cowboy and artist, in Arizona last spring while at a resort. They eloped and the heiress' father sought Gillespie's arrest, but then changed his mind and affected a trial separation. At its conclusion, the daughter decided that she still loved her cowboy and Mr. and Mrs. Thorne returned to Chicago. Gillespie has been doing

OLD PETE BACK WITH FIRST LOVE

NEW YORK Dec. 11.—UP—The twilight of Grover Cleveland Alexander's checkered pitching career finds the veteran right-hander back with his first major league club.

The St. Louis Cardinals traded "Old Pete"—19 years a National league pitching star and hero of the Cardinals' 1926 World Series triumph over the Yankees—and Catcher Harry McCurdy to the Philadelphia Phillies today for outfielder Homer Peet and pitcher Bob McGrath.

Back in 1911 Alexander, a raw-boned Nebraska boy, came up from the Syracuse club and made good with the Phillies. He pitched the Phillies to the National league pennant in 1915, winning 31 games and losing 19, and then in 1918 along with catcher Bill Killifer, new manager of the St. Louis Browns, was sold to the Chicago Cubs for $55,000 and two players.

Breaks Training

In 1926 Alexander got in bad with Joe McCarthy serving his first season as manager of the Cubs, because of his failure to observe training rules and "Old Pete" was shipped to the Cardinals via the waiver route.

Although Alexander is 42 and has had to rely mainly on his control, for the past few years Philadelphia officials feel that he will win many games for the Phillips' hard hitting club.

Another trade today sent the veteran pitcher, Wally Schang, from the St. Louis Brown to the Philadelphia Athletics for third baseman Sammy Hule.

Two decisions reached the National league magnates at their meeting were:

Radio Broadcasting

Radio broadcasting of major league games is a matter for each individual club to decide.

The National league will suggest to the baseball manufacturers that they take the gloss off the balls to prevent the umpires from having to do it.

National league umpires will be permitted to work in spring training games next season after a lapse of one year. Three committees—constitution, playing rules, and radio and telegraph—were appointed by President John Heydr.

At the close of the American league meeting, President E. S. Barnard said that nothing of importance was agreed upon.

In Good Condition

"The affairs of the American league are in fine shape," said Barnard, "and we discussed only minor matters."

There was no change in the Brooklyn situation despite an effort of Commissioner K. M. Landis and President John Heydr to bring the warring factions together. For the present, Wilbert Robinson remains president and manager of the Brooklyn club, but his hands are tied until a truce is effected with the McKeever interests, owning 50 percent of the club.

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—UP—William "Wild Bill" Melhorn, star pro golfer, left off last spring's U. S. Ryder Cup golf team, will be a member of the team when it is assembled in 1931, it was said today.

Why Melhorn was left off the team is one of those mysteries of sport never adequately explained in view of Wild Bill's brilliant showing in winter golf just before the selections were made.

SOCCER TEAM AT U.C. GETS AWARDS

BERKELEY, Dec. 11.—Following the close of the fall season, Circle "C" awards have been made to 14 varsity soccer players at the University of California. At the same time, circle numerical awards were made to 13 members of the freshman soccer team.

The Berkeley soccer men clinched a successful season by winning two of three games with Stanford university's team. The initial game of the series resulted in a scoreless tie.

Following are the varsity awards approved by the Executive committee of the Associated Students of the university.

John D. Smart and Francis A. Smart, of Berkeley; Yoshimi D. Smokov and Allen T. Hjermann of Oakland; Edmund F. Woblett and Ernest W. Woblett, of Los Angeles; Albert Horenstein, of Tientsin, China; Vladimir V. Solovieff, Moscow, Russia; Alex M. Derkatch, Reno, Nev.; Gabriel Epstein, Santa Paula; Erwin A. White, Alameda; James F. Hayes Corcoran.

Freshman numerical awards were made to the following men:

Arthur S. Gracey, Joseph V. Rice and Donald Daizel, all of Berkeley; Josiah Coffie, E. Taber and Robert W. Edwards, all of Oakland; Alexander W. Fairburn, Alexia G. Maximov and Charles A. Werner, all of San Francisco; Enrique C. Guerra, of Alameda; Robert K. Service, of Shanghai, China; and Edwin J. Justice, of Menlo Park.

The meet will be the first on the Bear schedule. Two weeks later, on Feb. 13, 14 and 15 the Californians will compete with U. C. L. A. and U. S. C. at Yosemite valley. Contests will be entered in three events, ice skating, with the Hoover cup as the winner's trophy. The Arrowhead and Yosemite games will be played on natural ice.

Thirty-five men are at present signed up for the sport which promises to offer some of the most interesting contests of the early spring season. A third meet in which the Bears will participate, the minor sports carnival at Los Angeles April 11 and 12, will complete the season. A number of games with club and college teams are being arranged for the bay region.

Liver, Gall Bladder and Stomach Trouble Relieved

2946 Morgan Av
Oakland, Calif.
Nov. 19, 1924

THE FONG WAN HERB CO.

Dear Mr. Fong
I am writing this letter to express my gratitude for the splendid results and benefits I have received from the use of the Chinese Herb prepared by you.

I had a complication of Liver, Gall Bladder and Stomach Trouble with sharp, stabbing pain in the lower right side of my Abdomen. The region of the Liver was exceedingly sore and tender; so much so that even loose clothing became irritating and uncomfortable. My Stomach was also very sore to the touch and felt as though there were a lump the size of an egg in it. After meals, food which was very sour and burned my throat, was returned to the mouth. This condition steadily became worse over a period of a year. During this time, I was treated by two doctors without any a-

Lena, his dear little blonde Lena, had as she would have expressed it, "given him the air!" There was no one now to whom he could turn in his loneliness—no friendly, happy days ahead. He would like to tell his parents, but how could he?

A radio blared forth a song—and into the dullness of his consciousness he realized it was the song Lena sang when he first saw her on the stage. Oh well, he would just have to take himself in hand—it would not be easy, but it must be. Gone were the rosy tinted dreams, plans and thoughts of that romance that built the straight white road through the lane of tall green trees to the shiny white house called "Happiness."

* * * *

The days were spent in a feverish anxiety—going from office to office—waiting for elevators—climbing stairs—waiting for the "powers that be" only to be informed, after sitting impatiently for several minutes, panic in the soul, that the gentleman had gone the way of earning it is made impossible—but it surely does give one the right to earn it and the ways of doing so. My poor father—my poor little mother and—I am such a failure!"

This next would be his last call—at least for today—he was tired out—with the confusion and noise—it seemed he would never get there.

When at last he arrived at Abrams' office he had reached the condition which inevitably comes after long hours of effort, expenditure, and great mental upheaval—the state of mind when nothing matters any more. He felt as he just did not care whether he found employment here, but his conscience would bother him if he let this chance go by.

For the first time that afternoon Ted did not have to wait for man he wanted to see, but was ushered, immediately, into the private office.

He gave Mr. Abrams the card well as one of his own.

"I'm very sorry, but—" and Mr. Abrams rose fingerling the card.

Ted interrupted him—"Listen, Mr. Abrams," he said earnestly and with great sincerity, "I've got to get a job. I used up all my money and my parents are dependent upon me! I'm broke! I've walked the streets for five weeks."

Mr. Abrams lent a sympathetic ear—he had heard this story many times. This poor struggling musician—all artists, striving and making every effort to succeed, never doing so without that initial period of trial and starvation. And the son of Victor Molnar—Victor Molnar dependent on the boy. Inconceivable! The boy had been the toast of the world only a few years back as the recognized genius of the violin.

"Now, my boy, I am going to give you a little advice—I know they give you plenty of advice. But follow mine, and I will reward you by finding you a good place to work in. This city is not interested in the great works of masters—unless particularly for New York and for you. There are large salaries, if you for the day!

It was to the Philharmonic Symphony orchestra's offices that Ted turned his steps now. And a feeling of renewed hope made his steps lighter. If one wanted to succeed one could not afford to become disengaged, for when that happened one lost the power of controlling their destiny to a certain degree. "And after all," Ted thought to himself as he walked towards the offices—"the best thing, I have come to the conclusion, to do, is to keep kidding yourself along. I will be miserable if I accept the literal facts of our situation here in this country: kidding myself is just what I want to do—Life is only bearable that way—it keeps your feet out of the muck of bare reality and keeps them treading the clouds!"

He arrived at the offices of the New York Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra. After the usual wait of quite some minutes, he was ushered into the presence of the manager of that great organization.

"I will keep your name and address filed, and if anything should come up, I will get in touch with you," he said, in answer to Ted's plea for a job.

"But—sir, I am sure I can qualify—I have studied under my father."

"You are fortunate—your father was a great musician—we have a long waiting list—but just a minute—I have a friend at the Metropolitan Opera."

The manager wrote on the back of one of his own cards—

My dear Gatti:

This is the son of the great Victor Molnar.

J. R.

At the Metropolitan Opera House—the interview granted him was very short. The second manager simply informed him that no new men were needed until the next season.

"But I'll give you a card to a friend—"

On the card Ted read "Mr. Abrams, Theatrical Booking Office."

He hurried to the address given on the card. His spirits had fallen considerably during the different interviews. Next season! Yes, probably next season he could work—but now was the time he really they are jazz crazed, if you want Heifetz or Mischa Elman—could sell your music, and they would pay huge prices to hear you. But what you want to do to become successful in life, is to get busy, learn how to give the people what they want—and at the present time it is jazz music. Sell your fiddle, buy yourself a saxophone and in no time you can be packing houses, and your name will be universally known."

Ted walked sadly to the door. "Now you think over what I have said, and when you can blow a saxophone come back and see me, and I'll do something for you!"

Ted looked at Mr. Abrams, must have misunderstood—or perhaps that was the name of manufacturers of saxophones. The Americans—such a different language than the one he had been taught.

"Hot saxophone?" Ted asked mystified.

Mr. Abrams laughed as he answered, "Yes, red hot!" and patted Ted with fatherly affection before escorting him to the door.

The tenement flat that housed Ted's parents had taken on an entirely different aspect since he had moved in. Little personal effects here and there lent a "homely" atmosphere and deadened the din and confusion the new represented, the old couple being to regard it as home—at least much of a home as their purses would permit. It was not, of course, like their home been at Budapest—but then, they were trying hard to get the philosophical viewpoint. No luxuries, no servants, hardly enough, times, to eat! But they were bent to see the truth of the saying that went something to effect—"You never know just what you can do until you have to."

Mrs. Molnar moved easily around the room straightening whatever disorder she could—earth—a chair here, a "tidy" there, and a magazine on the table. A chair near the window sat Mr. Molnar reading a Hungarian newspaper, and from time to time cursing at length on the items of interest to them it contained.

A political cartoon by "LOOY DOT DOPE". The title is at the top. In the center, a man with a large, swollen foot is sitting in a chair, holding a glass. A speech bubble from the right side of the frame contains the text: "HM... HE'S ASLEEP AGAIN — I'LL COVER UP HIS GOUTY FOOT WITH THIS LEOPARD RUG!" A leopard's head and a hand holding a brush are visible on the right, suggesting the leopard is applying a rug to the man's foot. The background is textured and somewhat abstract.

STATE TROOPS 31 CITIZENS QUELL PRISON RIOT BORN HERE IN NOVEMBER

ammunition. 15 of the ringleaders surrounded eight guards in one of the prison halls and disarmed them.

Retreating to the north cell block the mutineers carried the guards with them, threatening death at the first attempt to rescue them. Guards on the walls and in the watch towers were unable to fire into the mass of struggling convicts for fear of wholesale slaughter.

Principal keeper Dunford was shot at the outset of the riot.

Warden Jennings, accompanied by other guards, entered the prison and sought to parley with the convicts. Their reply was to seize the warden and his companions and barricade themselves in the cell block.

Guards Arrive

At 5 o'clock the prison gates swung open and a force of 200 National Guardsmen, 25 Syracuse police and 40 policemen from Rochester swept through the yards, firing as they went.

Here they met a determined resistance.

In the battle the state forces shot Parry Johnson, a convict from Binghamton, through the head. Johnson died in the hospital shortly after he was brought out. John Bullock, a guard, was shot in the abdomen and his condition was considered critical. The third casualty was Claude Udwin, a convict 28, who was shot in the jaw and who is believed to be dying. Udwin was serving a 30 year sentence for robbery.

He was sent up from Buffalo.

Ringleader Shot

Max Becker, a desperado from New York, one of the ringleaders in the outbreak, and serving a 40 year sentence for robbery, was also shot in the chest. He was expected to live.

Shortly after 5 o'clock, acting Governor Lehman officially announced that the situation was under control, that state troopers had locked 500 prisoners in their cells, and that only the south wing of the prison was still holding out. Most of the ringleaders are on the casualty list, he said.

A squad of 40 police, armed with tear bombs and riot guns, arrived within two hours of the start of the outbreak this morning, and this force was swelled by the arrival of state police drawn from 40 stations in western New York, and company T. N. Y. N. G. The forces were commanded by Adjutant General Franklin W. Ward.

Machine guns were placed around the walls, and a determined battle between the convicts, then barricaded in the north cell block, began.

Shortly after noon, and following a conference of the military officials, it was decided to storm the cell house.

A shower of tear bombs tore through the barred cell windows, while the mutineers responded with revolver fire. Unable to resist, however, the ringleaders abandoned their hostages and took refuge in the west and south cell houses, while the attackmen under dures.

Guards Rescued

There they found the warden and his guards in a daze from the effects of their captivity and the gas.

The rescued guards, many of them wounded, and all of them suffering from shock, were the following:

William Dempsey stabbed; Albert Hoshauer shot; Van Hauseen shot; Hudner, stabbed; M. J. Ryter, stabbed; Walter Bailey bruised; George Atkins, shot in face and seriously wounded.

The guards reported the mutineers had used extreme violence and brutality during their captivity.

While it was reported that Warden Jennings had sent out a message, upon his capture, advising authorities to accede to the convicts' demands, his associates discounted the report, some declaring the message a fake and others claiming that, if such a message was sent, it was obtained under duress.
